Vice-President Borja explained that the Zone she represents in parts of Indio has a traumatic history of land use in the Black community and inquired she is how OneFuture is reaching out to Black students in Indio, further explaining that the timeline is not sustainable beyond 2 years.
Sheila Thorton, President/CEO, OneFuture Coachella Valley, described the work of the organization over the past 15 years with the nonprofit partners, referrals, and host coordination that are in touch with the students and not targeting just one city, such as Indio. OneFuture works closely with the students in the school district as early as Freshman year working with the teachers and counselors with the OneFuture staff presenting on the scholarship process. Two years of assistance with building the structure in the key strategic areas and it's a driver and connection to the students and support systems to engage and remain involved in a pathway to enrollment, financial aid, assessment of affordability, and a connection after college. Peer mentors and a sustainability plan are the backbones for alignment teams.
Vice-President Borja described sustainability grants, such as support from the United Negro

College Fund (UNCF) and the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund, explaining that this particular program is not as long term as other organizations.Ms. Thorton clarified that it is an area the collaborative has not placed attention to as the criteria have been focused on low-income Latinx students. When the opportunity arose OneFuture moved forward with the proposal to assist Black and African American students.Kim McNulty, Vice President of Regional Strategy, OneFuture Coachella Valley, and Ernie Rios, Vice President of College Success, OneFuture Coachella Valley, were available to answer any questions of the committeeVII.
